EFFECTS ORGANIZATION

OF FOREIGN STUDENTS.

Success of Cosmopolitan Club Now Assured—Much Enthusiasm Evidenced—Ten Nationalities Present.

Eight countries represented by students enrolled in G. W. U. were present at the meeting Thursday evening, called for the purpose of drawing up plans for the organization of a Cosmopolitan Club at this University. They were: Costa Rica, Finland, Germany, Italy, Porto Rico, Syria, United States and Uruguay. Added to these were Mr. I. J. De Majumbar, of India, and Mr. Wolkowsky, of Russia, both former students of Cornell and members of the Cosmopolitan chapter at that University. The following countries having students enrolled here were not represented: Australia, England, Mexico (2), Peru, Philippine Islands (2), Poland, Russia, Siam, and South Africa (2). Messrs. Guasp, Lewis, Peck, and Vasenius were appointed a committee to call on these students and seek to interest them in the movement.

Mr. Wolkowsky made a brief address in which he said, among other things: "Students from abroad come to the United States to study America, not books. They have books enough at home. * * Americans are somewhat inclined at times to exhibit a patriotism which becomes almost arrogant, unless through association with, and the study of the peoples of other countries they learn that those countries are also exerting influences in the advancement of civilization." Mr. Wolkowsky then spoke of the influence of these college associations in the future international warfare when such men, having taken leading positions in the governments of their respective countries, will come together for conferences and arbitration, each with a fuller knowledge of the viewpoint and methods of thought of the others. He mentioned the benefits to be derived while traveling in foreign lands through meeting former members of the Cosmopolitan Club. He spoke of the value of Esperanto, and the fact that the Cornell Cosmopolitan Club uses this language quite extensively now. He suggested that each foreigner secure the flag of his country and present it to the club; expressed the hope that the club could have at least one "national night" before the end of the year, and closed by offering all his available time and energy toward promoting the interests of the club.

Mr. De Majumbar then spoke of the Cornell Club and the work it had accomplished in securing students from abroad, particularly from India. He has but recently installed a young Indian prince in Cornell.

Professor Veditz made some relevant remarks on the importance of such a club. He emphasized the value of the personal element in the study of mankind, saying that it was of more worth than the study of libraries of books, and he prayed that this club, at least, might become a strong and successful organization.

The constitutions of the Wisconsin and the Cornell chapters were considered, and Messrs. Baer, Wolkowsky, and Edler were appointed a committee to draw up a constitution for the G. W. U. chapter. Mr. Wolkowsky will endeavor to secure the cooperation of the diplomatic corps in starting the club.

It is believed that by next Thursday evening the club will be ready to file its application for membership to the association with the head chapter at Wisconsin. In the meantime, students interested in our organization are exhorted to do their utmost toward making it a success. It should be borne in mind that this is not a movement peculiar to G. W. U., but one which is taking place in all of our leading universities and colleges, with the difference that our University is, by its location and through its prospective associate membership—certain members of the diplomatic corps—in a position to derive greater benefit and to boast a higher prestige than any other institution in the country.

Failure to carry this scheme to a successful issue will place us in a very embarrassing light with such of the universities as have organized chapters.

Members of the faculty, also, are requested to lend their influence toward this worthy end. This is a matter which concerns not only the foreign students, but the University as a whole. The stronger we can make this club, the larger will be our foreign enrollment.

All foreign students are urged to attend the meeting to be held Thursday evening, April 2, at 8:15, when the constitution will be presented for discussion, and the election of officers will be in order.

moments came. Yet we feel somewhat justified in predicting that the football team of George Washington University for 1908 has the promise of being the best ever representing this institution.

Captain Sommers will have with him the following of last year's veterans: Crafts, Brooks, Holmes, Alston, White, Whitehead, Witten, Hooten, Pearce, and Hough. In addition, Neil, O'Neal, Woods, Kemeys, Kinner, Clark, Powell and others of the scrubs have promised to return. Then several men who were prevented from appearing this year on account of studies will try in 1908. Among them Pearce, the leader of the Minstrel Show, is almost sure of a regular place, because of his weight and experience.

The schedule, this year, lacks a game with Georgetown because of the strained relations between the two colleges, but Bucknell will afford a much closer and better contest. Among the new teams appear the Naval Academy and Washington and Lee, which has been absent from our list for three years. Swarthmore again will be played.

The coach and a field are still undecided, but the management hope to make definite announcements within the near future.

The attention of the members of the Senior Class of the College is called to the matter of the class pin. Mr. Seiler, chairman of the pin committee, requests that each member of the class see him personally as soon as possible in regard to the matter, so that orders for the pins may be sent in without any further delay.

WHAT MONEYWAY THINKS ABOUT THE JUNIORS.

Professor Swisher (in Constitutional History)—"What's the matter, Mr. Marye? Can't you spare the time to listen? Napoleon could."

Mr. Latimer (in Commercial Law)—"What is the form of a certificate of deposit?"

Student—"I saw one once. It was about 3x4, I think."

(The name of the "Student" is not given, because Wenderoth said if that thing was put in The Hatchet about him the Junior editor would get that undertaker's certificate Professor Veditz requires for absence from class.)

Roy Carty, who waited until his Junior year before he could spare the time to have the measles, has recovered and is back in college again.

Fehr is taking a course in Girlology now. From all reports he is "making good."

Daniels is taking some special work at a seminary on Fourteenth street.

Have you ever noticed that ready-to-wear smile of Finch's?

Chemistry is still Miss Steever's favorite study.

WHAT THE JUNIORS THINK ABOUT MONEYWAY.

Unless Mr. Moneyway's eyes behave while in certain restaurants near the College we may be called upon to publish congratulations.

ARCHITECTURE.

The last competition of the Beaux Arts Society for esquisses in Class B, plan and order, drew a lively interest. There were 30 preliminary designs submitted, representing nearly all the members of the class. The subjects were An Aquarium, by W. A. Delano, and A Three Bay Arcade, by H. W. Corbett. The Society, in the judgment of the Triumphal Arch and A Private Stable, recently held in New York, mentioned drawings done by the following of our students: Foster, Bolton, Fry, Brodie, Garland, Hooten, Geare, MacAuley, Greenburg, Holzberg, Buckingham, Dyland and Burnham.

We expect to enjoy the good time which the Minstrel Show promises to be. Already there is a grand scramble for the front row seats and the bouquets are now being ordered and labeled. No student should miss this event. This Division is heartily interested.

In the near future the Club will hold a meeting to consider important matters. The roll needs to be straightened out. Administrative affairs will be considered in order that the Club may close the season, which ends the last of May, in good condition. Let us all gather around the Club, remembering the good times it has provided, and lend wisdom and aid in the remaining affairs of the year.

EDUCATION.

The School of Arts and Crafts has started a course of lectures on arts and art-handicraft subjects. These lectures will be given Friday afternoon at 4:30. All students and friends of the University are invited to attend.

The first of these lectures was given last Friday. About seventy-five persons were present, and from every standpoint this initial lecture was a success. The lecturer was Mrs. H. R. Albee, who has been prominently connected for the past ten years with the Arts and Crafts movement in this country. Mrs. Albee is the originator of the famous "Abnakee" rugs. In durability and in total artistic effect these rugs are close rivals of the imported oriental ones. Their production is designed as a rural industry.

The possibilities of this rug-making industry for rural districts are unlimited and Mrs. Albee is fully aware of its importance as a means of raising the standard of living in these districts. It is well known that one of the most important sociological problems of today is the overcrowding of our cities. Any scheme, therefore, which tends to keep people in the rural districts should be welcomed as a palliative of this grave social malady. Moreover, the making of these rugs, requiring, as it does, the exercise of individual taste, has a cultural value, and tends to relieve the more or less mechanical labor of the country.

The next lecture, April 3, will be given by Prof. Otis T. Mason, of the National History Museum. Prof. Mason's subject will be, "Basketry," on which he is the leading authority in this country.

The remaining lectures are as follows:

April 10, Mr. E. C. Messer, "Line in Design."

April 17, Mrs. W. H. Holmes, "Elizabethan and Jacobean Furniture."

April 24, Prof. Percy Ash, "English Renaissance in Architecture."

May 1, Miss H. S. Ellis, "Spirit of Italian Art."

May 8, Harry S. Michie, "Japanese Prints."

Considering the fact that the School of Arts and Crafts opened in the middle of the college year, its enrollment is very encouraging. Already more than twenty-five students have entered, and applications are still coming in.

FROM OTHER COLLEGES.

Sage Chapel, at Cornell, is to have two memorial windows for the victims of the burning of the Chi Psi Chapter House last winter.

The New York State legislature recently passed a bill, by the passage of which Greek letter societies are to be exempted from taxation on their property.

Some members of the Wisconsin faculty have started a movement to abolish fraternities by State law. They have introduced a bill into the Legislature to provide for dormitories, and then to prohibit fraternities and clubs. They think this will strengthen the spirit of democracy.

Thirteen fraternities at Syracuse University have formed a basketball league.

The authorities of Lehigh University are now considering whether the university campus should be used for sites of fraternity houses. The objection is made that they will be monuments of special classes of students and not representative.

The fraternities at the University of Washington have introduced chess among the different student organizations.

Michigan has thirty-two fraternities, eleven sororities and six clubs, forty-nine in all.

According to the 1907 "Howitzer" the annual publication of each successive first class at West Point, there were seventy-six fraternity men at West Point. Those in the lead as to number were Sigma Alpha Epsilon, with eleven; Phi Delta Theta, with six; Sigma Chi, with five; Delta Kappa Epsilon, with five, and Beta Theta Pi, with four.

Southern Kappa Alpha has placed its latest chapter at Drury College, Missouri. At its last convention the policy of exclusively southern extension was modified or abandoned.

Chapters of the law fraternity of Delta Chi and the fraternity of Delta Sigma Phi have been established at the University of Texas.

Tau Beta Pi, the honorary engineering society, has rented a house at the University of Illinois. This seems to be a new departure for a society of this class. Perhaps some day we will have chapter houses in Phi Beta Kappa.

On March first the sorority girls at Indiana held their annual masquerade ball, at which one-half masqueraded in men's clothes. This year some of the boys peeked through the transom and cracks and then stole all the refreshments. Now a rigid investigation is in progress by the authorities and it is probable forty or fifty men will be suspended.

MEDICAL CLASS, 1912.

EDWIN A. SWINGLE, Class Editor.

We learn with regret of the death of Mr. Hales' brother. The Class extends its heartfelt sympathies.

Dr. Owen—Mr. Castleman, what is that art effect you have there?

Cassie—Why, that's the abdominal ring, Doctor.

First Student—I hear Davis had dates with three damsels for the same night. How did he manage to keep all of them?

Second Student—Mugwumps, old man, mugwumps.

We all admire Lashhorn's spring bonnet. His blue polka-dot band is simply stunning. Oh slush!

Have you seen Chris's ox-blood shoes yet? If not, get wise.

ECHOES.

Davis—Budweiser's a friend of mine.

Pitt—Somebody lied.

Ramsey—Auf wiedersehen.

Peter can see more colors in the Spectroscope than all the rest of the class. He saw red, violet and blue, when the yellow flame of sodium was being viewed.

a deep interest in the University, and learning that the students were endeavoring to raise money for athletics, offered, through Mr. Allis, the Business Manager of the Hatchet, to donate twenty-five pounds of candy to the cause. The offer was gladly accepted and the candy placed on sale at the University.

The proposition met with instant favor among the students and Mr. Allis was kept busy in all his spare time exchanging bags of candy for dimes. The candy was decidedly good and the first package was not enough for most students.

Mr. Doolittle expresses himself as highly pleased with the way the students have taken hold of the proposition and announces that he will donate twenty-five more pounds to be sold in the same way on Friday, April 3, in the Law Building.

The Dolly Madison candies are rapidly acquiring a reputation for goodness and quality and the excellent facilities of Mr. Doolittle's establishment are being taxed to fill the ever-increasing flood of orders from satisfied patrons. The shop is within convenient distance of the University, being located at 715 11th street Northwest.

The sororities at Minnesota have adopted a rule requiring that freshmen to be eligible to membership must have passed in seventy-five per cent of their work. This means that any freshman girls taking less than four subjects, and failing in any one of them, will not be eligible. A higher standard is to be adopted next year.

Chi Epsilon Chi, a sorority with but two chapters, one in Kentucky State College, Lexington, Ky., has just purchased a chapter house. This is the first chapter house in that State to be owned by any fraternity or sorority.

Those of the students who noticed the sale of candy for the benefit of athletics last Thursday and Friday in the Administration Building may be interested to learn that this sale was made possible through the generosity of Mr. Doolittle, the maker of the famous Dolly Madison Candies. The next week is to be a gala time for the Hatchet. Ever on the alert for that which is best to present to his readers, the Editor of the Hatchet has decided to turn over the entire forthcoming issue to the Law Department (which is, of course, the very best department) of the University. The following number of the Hatchet, therefore, will contain stories concerning the Law School, "photographs" of several of the distinguished professors, word sketches of the dean and his assistant teachers, a page devoted to legal jokes, and numerous other features. Some of the very best literary men in the University have written, or will contribute, articles for next week's issue. In addition to the regular subscribers of the Hatchet, it is hoped and expected that every man in the Law School will see to it that he secures a copy of the "law issue" of the college paper. Some member of each of the classes will be on hand next Thursday evening in each of the classes with extra copies of the Hatchet, which will be sold at five cents each. All of the money thus secured, above actual expenses, will be turned over to the athletic fund. Thus by purchasing a copy of this edition de lux the law students will have not only shown good class and college spirit, but will have aided the athletic fund as well. Save your nickels; you might want to send away three or four copies of the paper next week to the folks at home.

MEETING OF THE COLUMBIAN DEBATING SOCIETY.

The meeting was called to order by President Haines somewhere about the usual time in Brother Haines' usual dignified manner. As the books and the secretary were absent, Brother Haines dispensed with the reading of the minutes and the roll call. Mr. H. S. Moore was unanimously elected a member of the Society on the proposal of Brother Allen. The meeting was an unusual one in many respects. In the first place there were some "brothers" left over, after the requisite number of debaters had been obtained and the board of judges selected, to constitute an audience. In the second place, the question was, resolved, That prohibition should be established in the District, and Bro. Michael Levin volunteered to uphold the affirmative. In justice to Bro. Levin it should however be stated that the quota for the negative side had been filled before he had a chance to volunteer to uphold that side. Brother Levin drew a sad and sorrowful picture of innocent youths and more innocent young women ruined by drink. Brother McClennon drew an equally pitiful picture of Ambassadors and other foreign representatives coming to Washington, the Capital of these great United States, and finding here Prohibition. As an ardent upholder of the negative he asked: "What will these foreigners think of such a nation?" Granted, for the purpose of the argument only, that you could "after 50 years" break native Americans of the drink habit, could you ever break the foreigners of that habit? Brother McClennon strongly intimated that, were prohibition to be enacted in the District, international complications were exceedingly likely to result therefrom. The other gentlemen on the debate expressed their opinions on the question; those of the negative convincingly; those of the affirmative, half-heartedly—except of course, Brother Levin, who rose mightily to the occasion.

The judges unanimously reported in favor of the negative, and President Floyd's first action after recovering from his recent illness was to call a class meeting relative to a class picture. After a lengthy meeting and considerable discussion the subject was laid on the table till next week to give time for careful consideration of the various suggestions.

also gave one of the upholders of that side first honors—Brother Hubbard. Brother Levin, of the affirmative, was awarded second honors.

Discussion ensued as to the question which the Society should submit to the Needham Society for the third inter-society debate. The question finally agreed upon to be submitted was: Resolved, That the present distribution of power between the Federal and State Governments is not adapted to modern conditions, and calls for a re-adjustment in the direction of further centralization.

POLITICAL SCIENCE.

Mr. Clarence A. Miller, M. Dip., at present U. S. Consul at Matamoros, Mexico, writing to Professor Veditz, says:

"My first winter away from G. W. U. has been delightful in many ways, but I have missed the lectures and debates more than one would imagine. * * * I feel each month more and more gratification because I had the opportunity of attending the school of politics and diplomacy, for the preparation so obtained has been invaluable to me. * * * I see you have been having an instructive course in the consular service, by Mr. Osborne, supplemented by lectures from other experts. I regret very much that I cannot be there to attend, as I would certainly enjoy them. * * * Assuring you of my continued interest in the University, * * * I remain," etc.

Steps will be taken very soon to expand the Social Science Club so that it may include within its province a share of the work now being done by the Intercollegiate Civic League, of which, by the way, a former graduate of G. W. U., John Boyle, Jr., is secretary.

In December, 1905, Mr. Charles M. Jesup, of New York, suggested to the Yale City Government Club the formation of a Federation of College University Clubs throughout the country at large, on the following platform:

1. Non-parisanship in politics.
2. To encourage the members of the clubs and undergraduate student body to intelligently inform themselves concerning all National, Commonwealth, Municipal and Village issues, relating to principles and candidates.

The Federation was organized in New York in March, 1906. In two years it has grown to twenty-six clubs, representing colleges and universities as far south as Louisiana, Northwest and West; North Dakota and Colorado; East Vermont and within that triangle. It has realized the purpose for which it was created, and is steadily expanding.

The work of this club's belonging to this league is extremely interesting. For instance, Williams College has made a comprehensive study of conditions pertaining to Child Labor that the New England branch of the National Child Labor Association has requested permission to publish the report of the Club on Child Labor as a part of its report.

Arrangements have been made for a meeting of delegates of the various clubs to the convention to be held at the Manhattan Hotel, New York City, on the first of April, and it is probable that Mr. Boyle will represent the Social Science Club at that convention.

At 2:30 p. m. will be held the business meeting of the convention, at which the following will be the order of business:

Roll call.

Adoption of a constitution.

Election of officers.

Discussion and adoption of the plan for financing the League.

A definite determination of the duties of the undergraduate officers.

The expansion of the League. The proper regulation of clubs, so that they may be included in the Department of History or

COMING TO THE THEATERS.

"Her Mad Marriage," Jean Barrymore's drama, which portrays the romantic story of the love of a young detective for a beautiful girl, will be next week's attraction at the Majestic. It is full of thrilling climaxes and narrow escapes, and keeps the heart interest of the audience from the rise to the fall of the curtain. A carload of special scenery is carried by the company. The advance sale indicates one of the banner weeks of the season.

Chase's next week will present an array of attractions, enlisting the dramatic star, W. H. Thompson, and company, including Thos. H. Ince, in "For Love's Sweet Sake," written by Clay Greene; Eugene Jepson and company, in George Ade's appreciated comedy, especially concocted for Mr. Jepson, entitled "The Mayor and the Manicure;" Stuart Barnes, the admirable Crichton among monologists; Mlle Marguerite and her European haut ecote exhibition of equestrianism; the Murray Sisters, the Arlington Musical Four, the Yamamoto brothers in Japanese suspension feats, and the motion pictures, "The Pearl Fishers."

"The Clansman," by Thomas Dixon, Jr., will be the attraction at the Columbia Theater next week, with a special production. The play is rich in comedy, in love interest, and full of tragic power, particularly in its delineation of the terrible Ku-Klux Klan. The action of the play does not lag for a minute. Pictures of Southern life pass and repass while the thrilling reconstruction story is being enacted. Whether one cares anything about the struggles between the carpet-baggers and conservatives or not, one is enthralled by the story simply as a play, and "The Clansman" has been received with equal enthusiasm in all parts of the country, regardless of sectional lines. The players include Franklin Ritchie, James J. Ryan, Eugenie Hayden, Maude Durand, Barry Maxwell, Bruce Richardson, M. J. Jordan, Ruth Hart, Guy B. Hoffman, Joseph L. Sweeney, and thirty others. A troop of cavalry horses is carried by the organization.

The attraction at the Belasco Theater next week will be "Going Some," a new farce by Paul Armstrong and Rex Beach. "Going Some" deals with life on a Western ranch and the humorous side of the cow punchers' existence. The story tells of the events leading up to a footrace which has been arranged between representatives of two rival branding outfits. The central character is a verdant youth from an Eastern university, who represents himself to be a champion runner, in order that he may impress a young lady in whom he has become interested. In reality, his participation in athletics has been confined exclusively to leading the noisy demonstrations of undergrads from in front of the grandstand. The cow punchers who have backed him are terribly in earnest, and he has to put his bluff through. The footrace is shown in the last act, providing a scene of life and animation such as is rarely shown upon the stage. A company of clever comedians interprets the play. George Marion, who produced the play, also essays one of the principal roles; James E. Sullivan, who has just returned from a stay in London, where he has been for several years one of the most popular comedians, and Richard Bennett, who recently played the leading part in "Twenty Days in the Shade," and who created the part in "Twenty Days in the Shade," and who created the part of Jeff of Jefferson Ryder in "The Lion and the Mouse," are in the cast.

For one week, beginning Monday night, April 6, Miss Marie Doro, the newest of Mr. Charles Frohman's stars, will be seen at the New National Theater in "The Morals of Marcus," a comedy adapted for stage purposes by William J. Locke, author of the novel, "The Morals of Sir Marcus Ordeyne." Miss Doro made her debut at the Park Theater, in Boston, on October 7, and so great was her success that it was found necessary to extend her engagement beyond the three weeks originally allotted. A long engagement at the Criterion Theater, in New York, followed. It is averred that Miss Doro, from the start, proved her qualifications for stardom, and her acting, always charming and appealing, is said to have found new scope and power as Carlotta, the little Syrian waif who escapes from a Turkish harem, flees to England, and there becomes the heroine of as pretty and delightful a love affair as was ever penned. The play itself is brilliantly written and sparkles with dialogue worthy of Pinero or Jones. It is essentially a comedy of character, and those characters are admirably drawn by Mr. Locke. The situations are dramatic and the outcome of the story such as to incite the curiosity of all. In the splendid supporting company are C. Aubrey Smith, as Marcus, a role which this eminent English player creat-

The School of Arts and Crafts has arranged for several short courses beginning April 1st. For further particulars, students should apply to Prof. Hough or to Mr. Michie.

Among the new courses announced by the Division of Education for next year is a course of lectures on Industrial Education, by Dr. Meyers, principal of the McKinley Manual Training School. The growing importance of this subject is shown by the fact that the school appropriations for the District of Columbia for next year carries as a principal item an appropriation of between two hundred and two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, for the erection of a large central manual training school and six smaller ones.
